BILL TAYLOR

Director, Investigations & OSINT

William "Bill" Taylor, Director of Investigations & OSINT, has been honing his craft since 1990. From military intelligence to state and federal prosecution, white-collar defense to commercial litigation—his experience speaks for itself. When it comes to complex investigations, Bill's the one you want on your side.

Bill has assisted clients and outside counsel investigate a wide variety of potential violations of federal and state statutes, including those governing computer fraud and abuse, trade secret theft, aggravated identity theft, counterfeiting, export controls and trade sanctions, foreign corrupt practices and public corruption, theft from labor unions, and organized crime and racketeering.

Bill is adept at open-source intelligence gathering and analysis (OSINT), deep web research, forensic preservation, acquisition, and use of digital evidence, and data analytics to further corporate internal investigations. He also has expertise in eDiscovery, structured data analytics, cybersecurity frameworks, information governance, and data privacy. He has led numerous incident response teams in the wake of malicious computer intrusions, cybercrimes, data security breaches, and thefts of intellectual property.
