MILTON HOOPER

Senior eDiscovery Analyst

Milton is a Senior eDiscovery Analyst at iDS, bringing extensive expertise in information technology, litigation support, and eDiscovery. He specializes in efficiently processing and hosting eDiscovery data using industry-leading tools like IPRO, Relativity, and ReadySuite. With experience dating back to the 1990s, Milton's career includes significant roles at the United States Attorneys' Office, demonstrating his commitment to excellence across both legal and technology fields. His time as an eDiscovery Specialist at TCDI further refined his skills and broadened his expertise.

Milton's background illustrates an impressive combination of discipline and ambition. This is evident from his former eight-year service in the United States Air Force and his success as a self-published writer of five novels. This diverse experience has sharpened his ability to approach challenges with precision and creativity, making him an instrumental asset as a Discovery Analyst.

In addition to his professional accomplishments, Milton has a passion for writing. This is evident in his engaging blogs, where he actively connects with his audience. His innovative approach and adeptness at articulating complex ideas enable him to effectively communicate technical concepts to clients and colleagues alike.

Dedicated to delivering exceptional results, Milton embraces the philosophy of "Do what's expected – and more!" He finds fulfillment in the collaborative and supportive atmosphere at iDS, recognizing the value of collective knowledge-sharing in the ever-evolving world of eDiscovery. Milton's dedication to exceeding expectations ensures that he consistently contributes to the success of both his team and the clients he serves.
