Hunter has focused his career on leveraging data to bring together the worlds of legal and technology. His experience as a consulting and testifying expert, combined with pragmatic approach to business, gives clients a distinct advantage in and out of the court room.

Hunter is known for his interactive approach to speaking events – combining rich visualizations with real life examples giving audiences practical tips that they can take back and put into action. He encourages questions throughout the event but know he will ask you questions as well!

SPEAKING TOPICS

- Data Centric Compliance: When facing regulatory or other compliance inquiries, getting ahead of what the data is showing can be a distinct advantage, avoiding fines and penalties. Are you ready?
- Data Supported Testimony: Our memory can fail, but data can help remind and support even the most contentious testimony. Is your witness ready?
- Business Questions, Investigative Mindset: We all have questions about our business, many of which can be answered by combining your data with a new mindset. What do you want to know?
- Structured Processes for Exceptional Results: The questions may change, but a well-designed approach should not. That proven process can also create new efficiencies and better results. Do you know how you are going to respond?
- Being Curious: Great teams have diversity in experience and skills. Great data analyses and insights also benefit from diversity of sources and types. Are you layering your data together for the best results?

Available for in-person and virtual presentations

A data expert with a legal background, Hunter has conducted a wide range of investigations for both corporations and law firms, big and small. He now focuses on working with our experts and clients on data centric approaches to business and legal problems.
